

Devra Lee Davis, PhD, MPH

Devra Davis is Director of the world's first Center for Environmental Oncology at the University of Pittsburgh Cancer Institute and Professor of Epidemiology at the Graduate School of Public Health. The author of two critically acclaimed books and over 190 publications, Dr. Davis has advised governments throughout the world on environmental health hazards.

President Clinton appointed Dr. Davis to the Chemical Safety and Hazard Investigation Board (1994-99). She also served as the Founding Director of the Board on Environmental Studies and Toxicology at the National Academy of Sciences, a Senior Advisor to the Assistant Secretary for Health and as a Lead Author of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, the group awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 2007.